Russian Émigré Short Stories
from Bunin to Yanovsky
As well as including stories by the most famous émigré writers, Vladimir Nabokov and Ivan Bunin, this collection introduces many lesser-known voices, including, for the first time, known as “The Russian Front.” Nabokov’s “The Enchanted Wanderer” and sixty other stories by other writers including Bulgakov, Ilichevsky, Evgeny Grishkovets, and Julia Kissina. Drawn from the last two decades of the Soviet Union and the two decades following collapse, these short pieces provide a fascinating and often disturbing image of life in Soviet Russia.

DOMINIC LIEVEN

The End of Tsarist Russia

The War to World War II and Revolution

Lieber’s insight into the essentials of early twentieth-century Russian nationhood is unrivaled. In its scope, its treatment of the killer and most tragic period in Russian history, the book is a milestone. It shows how after 1905 the tsarist empire fell apart, how it was replaced by the Soviet Union and how the Jews were used to achieve this.

RICHARD J. EVANS

Waiting for Hitler, 1929-1941

Evans returns with a monumental new addition to the acclaimed Penguin History of Europe series, covering the period from the end of World War I. This book of unprecedented scope and depth explores the final decades of the Kaiser’s empire, the years of the Weimar Republic, and the rise of Hitler to power. The book is a testament to the relationship between the rise of totalitarian regimes and the Second World War at a time when the specter of another catastrophic global conflict haunts the world.

The Future in History: How Totalitarianism Reclaimed Russia
Award-winning journalist Gessen follows the lives of four people born at what promised to be the dawn of democracy. Each of them came of age with unprecedented expectations—of making a life for themselves in one war-torn locale after another. She reconstructs how the brothers’ struggle between assimilation and alienation define the modern Russian experience. The Man Without a Face offers Ludo-villa Petrushevskaya a chance to give voice to the story of her son, the Tsar- naev brothers, who attempted to make a life for themselves in one war-torn locale after another. She reconstructs how the brothers’ struggle between assimilation and alienation define the modern Russian experience.

In Words Will Break Cement, Masha Gessen, award-winning writer, activist, and journalist, offers her first memoir.* Words Will Break Cement* is a personal and political odyssey through the turbulent year and a half before the 2017 Women’s March and Russian President Vladimir Putin’s re-election. It’s a wide-ranging, deeply felt exploration of government, politics, religion, art, and family.

Dominic Ziegler

Black Dragon River

PENGUIN PAPERBACK • 400 PAGES • 978-0-399-56417-8 • $18.00

Dominic Ziegler’s Black Dragon River is a fascinating account of a land where both nature and history are multilayered. This is the story of the Amur River valley, which straddles the Russian and Chinese border. Over the centuries, the Amur has hosted and shaped the lives of countless peoples, from the Manchus and Russians to the Mongol Yuan dynasty and the Manchu Qing. Today, the Amur forms the source of the Yangtze, the longest river on the planet. The river’s course and history are revealing of the region’s complex politics.

Peter Kropotkin

A Journey Down the Amur River Between Russia and China

PENGUIN PAPERBACK • 176 PAGES • 978-0-14-312997-4 • $16.00

Peter Kropotkin was a Russian geographer, historian, and anarchist. One of the first social scientists to call attention to the complexity of nature, Kropotkin also helped to launch the field of political ecology. The first man to dive deep into the Amur, Kropotkin describes his journey down the river in this memoir, which is also a description of the region he visited.

Julia K. Eilts

The Man Without a Face

PENGUIN CLASSICS PAPERBACK • 368 PP. • 978-0-14-044907-5 • $14.00

Often lauded as the prototypical Russian novel, The Man Without a Face is a self-representative work of fiction. The narrator’s impromptu (and often unsuitable) adventures are at once hilarious and horrifying. Khabalov fashions his novel as a travelogue, a collection of stories, and a political treatise.
